New sports hall and classroom space at Brillantmont International School.

Brillantmont International School in Lausanne is getting bigger!

If you are driving near the park "Mon Repos" in the centre of Lausanne, you will probably come face to face with a construction site. This is the new project of Brillantmont International School in Lausanne (see previous post about this school), which is building a multi-purpose hall in the middle of its campus. The huge hall will have markings for various sports – basketball, football, hockey, badminton and others, along with a stage and performance area.

Currently, Brillantmont welcomes 100 boarders and 50 day students, but the new sports hall will also provide new classroom space, thus Brillantmont is increasing its day school capacity to 60 students. What's more, the school has added on two new grades and now accepts students from aged 11 into its British (IGCSE, A Level) or American programme. Check out the webcam of the school's building project on the site here
